Mines and Mining Stocks

"I do not know whether it is because of the surface water that is now making," said Manager Jacobson, "but the pressure of the streams squirting out of the drill holes is such as to make it look as though there was a tremendous amount of water being held back. While we are in good shape to handle lots of water, I do not feel like tempting fate. We have been flooded on that level once, and I do not care to see the experience repeated. I think the ground will drain out before long and when the pressure is reduced we shall go ahead with the work again. Fighting water is no joke, and I would rather make haste a little slower than to get eaught again."

Mr. Jacobson says that things are looking pretty good in other portions of the mine, and that considerable nice ore is still being shipped. He hopes to have the west end of the mine looking as well or better than ever again in a short time.

BEAVER COMBINATION IS GETTING DOWN TO ORE

Down at the Beaver Combination company's property, adjoining the Red Warrior and Burning Moscow, the task of sinking the shaft is going along nicely and it will not be long until news will be coming from the mine. The company has the same ledge that has developed about $300,000 worth of ore in the Red Warrior already and this vein, at its junction with another, will be encountered in the near future. Down at the Beaver Combination com-

The Combination company's property flanks the Red Warrior on the south side and across the east end and is counted as one of the best prospect in the Beaver county region, a prospect in which the making of a mine is already assured.

Shareholder's Attempt to Set Aside Sale of Property Is Shown Up in Court.

Just received a pair of lax30-inch rolls from the east to be used for regrinding ager Tony Jacobson, who came down from camp last night, states that he hopes to ship considerable ore from that groposition during the season. He states that development work in the ore has not progressed to an extent sufficient to make predictions on what sort of an output can be maintained, but he hopes to make a good showing. He says the mine is looking first rate at the present time and he is confident of making it look even better before long. The aerial training all the way from the mine to the samplers at Sandy. The officers deny that there was no no tice of the meetings, and set up as a de tice of the meetings, and set up as a defense that the reorganization was necessary to save the property. The Consolidated Jefferson, prior to the re-organization, was owing $25,000, and its creditors were clamorous for their money and threatening to put the company in the hands of a receiver. The treasury stock was then exhausted, the stock was non-assessable, and the property was not sufficiently developed to extract marketable ore. There was nothing to pay the debts. ficiently developed to extract marketable ore. There was nothing to pay the debts, and realizing the necessity of immediate action to preserve the property, the reorganization was effected, the amount of stock remaining the same and the only difference being that the stock in the new company was made assessable. The debts of the old company were assumed. Holders of $23,712 shares, the answer alleges, have consented to the transfer and have exchanged their Consolidated Jefferson stock for shares in the Wasatch-Utah company. These, too, have paid the assessments, which amount to 3 cents a share. Mengedoht, the officers say, can come in on the same basis whenever he

MINING STOCK EXCHANGE.

Seven Troughs Mining Is Again the Feature of Day's Trading.

Business was a little improved on the mining exchange yesterday and Seven Troughs Mining continued as the feature of the trading. It was started at 19c and sold up to 22c, closing at 21½c. The market position of this stock is growing stronger all the time. Big blocks of stock that have been a menace to the market for a long time are tied up and will likely pass into new hands within the next few weeks. In addition to that, there has been considerable of a clean-up of the floating weak stock during the past few months; so that, with splendid mine conditions, no debts and the marketing of ore, the stock ought to be much higher than it is and, if the oracles are to be believed, it will be. South Columbus Consolidated is also picking up, but otherwise the market shows little disposition to climb out of the rut into which it has fallen. Business was a little improved on the
